It includes, of course, the impor-tant privilege of voting and the Indian vote has become quite an important factor in politics in the west. Patents to lands have been issued to Indians from time to time under the treaties, so that with the ad-ditions to the number re-entity made under the severally act there are some is 000 inditions to the number recently made under the severalty act there are some 15,000 In-dians who hold patents to their lands. There are some 3,000 allotments which have been prepared, but have not as yet been approved. As the work progresses the number of patents increases with great rapidity, and the time is not far distant, it is thought, when Indian reservation will be practically unknown. In cases where the Indians on a reservation baye all rethe Indians on a reservation have all re-ceived patents to land, the balance of the land will be purchased by the government under agreement with the Indians.

but within a week Mrs. Porter presented him with a girl baby which he could not abandon immedately. It is believed that the council will have big influence on the future prospects of Oklahoma and the Indian nations. The more procressive of the Indians, such as the Cherokees, Chickasaws, and Creeks, have reached the conclusion that it is the settled purpose of the United States to appropriate their lands and throw them open to public settlement, whether it can be done so equitably or not. With this view the Indians will hold a council and try and reach some conclusion, for their mutual benefit. The Cherokees and Chickasaws know the value of the lands and in consequence are anxious to hold on to all they have, but the Choctaws, Creeks and Delawares from all accounts are willing that the lands should be allotted and the surplus soid to the United States for what they can get for them. It is probable that the Purcell council will be the most important gathering of Indians that has been witnessed within half a century. dians that has been witnessed within half

The fee man did not know that on the very night that Dr. Cronin was murdered the police took possession of the blood stained cottage at 1827. Ashland avenue. But such was the case. The police pumped Sullivan last Thursday. He contradicted himself frequently. Then they told him their suspicions and gave him enough truth to show that they knew more than he thought they did. Next day Sullivan changed his tune and more contradictions followed. The lying continued until yesterday. Then he decided to tell the truth and by so doing save himself from the fale that surely awaits the slayers of Dr. Cronin. He notified Captain Schaack of his resolution. At 11 o'clock yesterday moraing Sullivan was taken into Captain Wing's private office. He was confronted by Captain Schaack and Lieutenant Schutler. There was no stenographer present. The officers would not have one present. The officers would not have one present. They did not dare to trust to the discretion of a clerk. Schaack and Schutler took long mand notes of the confession. old man employed as an outside laborer at the mines, was found dead in his bed, at least that was the supposition. Preparations were made for his funeral. A grave was procured at the poor farm, and this morning Stephens' body was taken there in a wagon. In a lonely part of the road the driver heard a noise in the box. It grew louder and louder. The driver became alarmed, jumped from his seat and went to the nearest house. The immates were to the hearest house. The himsels were brought to the scene. The noise continued. The box was then broken open, and, to the surprise of all, Stenhens elevated himself. He was very weak. The box was very roughly constructed, otherwise the unfortunate man would have been smothered. He was taken out of his coffin and taken to the residence of John Cashen, when he soon revived. He are an egg and drank some coffee. He was totally ignorant of what had taken place, and says all he can remember is that he drank whisky in a salloon Saturday afternoon. NNW YORK, May 28,-Governor Foster,
